BOYCOTT Roundup

Consumers, Meat Men Jockeying for Scales; Prices Remain Stable

The consumer and the meat industry kept their thumbs jammed against opposite sides of the meat scales today and the impasse left retail prices relatively unaffected by the nationwide boycott.

Meat sales, however, continued to reflect a severe cut, ranging from a 40 per cent drop for some grocers to 70 per cent at the packing house.

The prospect of a letup soon in consumer prices appeared even dimmer today as the government reported a 2.2 per cent increase in wholesale prices in March, led by a 4.6 per cent rise in costs of farm products and processed

The increase, for the Second month the sharpest rise in 22 years, appeared to foreclose a possibilty of lower retail prices for at least the next several months. The report did not reflect the effects of the meat boycott.

Frank Register, the executive director of the National Association of Retail Grocers, said his organization has been making spot checks since the boycott began and meat sales nationwide are down 40 per cent.

He said, however, "At this time, the retail grocer has no cause for alarm because the same amount of money is being spent." He said total sales are about the same, but meat spending has shifted to poultry and fish.

The shift has been a boon to wholesalers in the fish business. And many fish retailers are experimenting with selling speciality items in addition to fish usually marketed.

The outlook is glum, however, for the meat packers. Robert Miller head of Union Packing Co. of Los Angeles, one of the nation's largest independent packers, said the boycott has cut sales by as much as 70 per cent.

Miller said that if the boycott continues, "it could really knock down retail meat prices, but probably would wreck an entire industry."

"We are already losing money on every head we kill," he said.

- and I don't believe that's likely to happen." "This thing is like a prairie fire," observes Walter Heller, University of Minnesota professor and former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

"The spontaneity of it is as impressive as its magnitude. One reason why I like it is that I think the consumer should rattle his saber occasionally.

"But I don't think the longrun effect on demand will be very tangible. I believe people are going to go back eventually to their basic eating habits.

...But Packers Worried

DALLAS (AP) — Meat packers are, as expected, unhappy about this week's meat boycott. But, they are not just unhappy about the meat price ceiling— they are worried about it.

They attribute rising meat prices to natural factors outside their control. And while the meat boycott is hurting them this week, they are more apprehensive about the price ceiling in weeks to Herman M. Waldman, secretary-treasurer of Dallas City Packing, Inc., said Wednesday that production was off about 20 per cent this week. Although none of the firm's 100 employes has been laid off, he said, the scheduled work load has been cut back somewhat this week.

"As a company," Waldman said, "all we can do is react. We can't project into the future." He cited increased demand and per capital consumption of beef in recent years and the short supply of cattle because of the hard winter and other factors.

Dallasites Roughing It With Lobsters at $6.35

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A matron at the meat counter in an exclusive North Dallas market turned up her nose at filet mignons at $4.35 per pound.

"Outrageous," she said. "We're eating seafood." She ordered six lobsters at $6.35

"No, you can't use my name," she said. "It's nobody's business if we eat lobster or tuna fish."

City employes with dirt-moving equipment put the finishing touches on a new driveway entrance to the City Animal Pound next to the City Barn, corner of Twelfth Street and Tenth Ave. Police Chief Don Massey said the new building to house dogs (frame shown in background) will measure 30 feet by 50 feet and include an office and storage room. WASHINGTON (AP) -Offering a carrot and a stick. Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson has linked U.S. aid for Hanoi to its keeping the peace. A massive invasion of the South, says Richardson, could bring renewed U.S. bombing.

Richardson told the House defense appropriations subcommittee Tuesday that "reintroduction of U.S. air support" would be considered only if Hanoi launched a massive military incursion like the one last year.

He said South Vietnam's military has already shown it can defend itself against anything short of that without American help.

KKK SUIT ENDS

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal court hearing for an airport guard who claims he was fired because of his membership in the Ku Klux Klan was expected to end today, lawyers said.

C. C. Clark is asking U.S. District Court Judge John V. Singleton to order the city to reinstate him as a security guard at Houston Intercontinental Airport and give him all back pay.

Clark is represented by lawyers from the American Civil Liberties Union, an organization frequently attacked by the Klan.

SOUTH SWAMPED

Torrential rains in severe thunderstorms swamped northern Florida and southern Georgia today while precipitation over most other parts of the nation decreased.

Two feet of water covered some streets in Jacksonville, Fla., which received 5.07 inches of rain during six hours Tuesday night for a total that day of 7.57 inches.

Ga., was Brunswick, drenched by 2.33 inches, and Tallahassee, Fla., recorded nearly 2 inches.

Scattered showers fell east of the Mississippi River. Fair skies prevailed in the western half of the nation.

Flagstaff, Ariz., got another inch of snow. More than 40 inches have fallen at Flagstaff since the weekend.

Widely scattered snow lingered in the central Rockies.

The battle against the flooding Mississippi River continued as levees from St. Louis south became soggy. Some levees already have given way and others may, authorities said.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the Mississippi would reach a modern record crest of 40.5 feet by Saturday at St. Louis, breaking the 40.2-foot mark set there in 1947 and 1951.

US Blacks In Trouble In Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The seed of American black power seems to be falling on stony ground in Uganda, current home of African black power.

A handful of black Americans who responded to President Idi Amin's appeals to help develop Uganda's nearly all-black economy have left the country. Reliable sources say they lost thousands of dollars in travel costs and savings stranded in Ugandan banks.

Instead of a brave new world of black supremacy, the sources said, the Americans found themselves caught up in red tape. Promised jobs failed to materialize. Problems of adjusting to an unfamiliar lifestyle overcame feelings of racial brotherhood.

But Amin is continuing a campaign to enlist aid from blacks outside Africa. His latest allies are four officials of the Congress of Racial Equality, who left Uganda last week pledging to recruit American doctors, teachers and engineers.

"We are going to recruit many professionals from all corners of the United States to come and serve in Uganda for periods ranging from one to three years," CORE director Roy Innis told newsmen.

During Amin's two turbulent years heading a military government, Asian businessmen have been expelled, foreign companies have been nationalized and prominent civilians have fled or been secretly killed.

Innis praised the president as a black power champion and said, "He has the ability to make decisions, unlike other leaders who theorize but do not execute."

Innis, CORE chief of staff Solomon Goodrich and aides Charles Cook and Richard Tortman spent nearly a month touring the country at Uganda government expense. They were frequent guests at the presidential mansion at Entebbe.

The Americans were said to have been granted Ugandan citizenship, although U.S. Embassy officials in Kampala said the four made no move to give up their American passports. The United States does not recognize dual citizenship.

County To Honor Senior Citizen

Mrs. June Sheppard, assistant County Extension Agent, reports that May is Senior Citizen's Month. It is not too early to start thinking about honoring the outstanding senior citizens of Navarro County this year, she said.

In Navarro County outstanding senior citizens have received awards from the Navarro County Health and Aging Committee for several years.

Last year two outstanding senior citizens were selected from 19 nominees. Those selected and presented awards were Mrs. Hallie Boswell and Mr. T.L. Carlisle. About 100 people were present at this celebration.

It is now time again to think of nominations for the outstanding Senior Citizens in Navarro County to be honored at a tea on Friday, May 4, 1973, in the Sky Room of the First National Bank, Mrs. Sheppard said.

The Navarro County Health and Aging Committee has set up rules for the selection of outstanding senior citizens in Navarro County. Two outstanding active senior citizens will be presented awards. One man and one woman, 65 years or older will be honored.

Any organization or individual may nominate a person they feel has made personal contributions to the county. Nomination forms are being distributed by Health and Aging Committee Members. The members of this committee are: Lin Warthan, Mrs. Gertrude Dryman, Mrs. C.G. Winn, Mrs. Eula Blocker, Ed Blackburn, Mrs. W.B. Mayfield, Mrs. Douglas Presley, Rev. Egge, Mrs. Marguerite Anderson, Capt. James Fortney, Miss Irene Boozer, Fred Gardner, Blake Gillen, Cloyce Floyd, Ralph Dudley, Lewis Thomas and Father James M. Siegler.

Forms can also be obtained from Committee Resource persons: Mrs. Margaret Jorgenson, David Helmer, Freeman Robinson, Mrs. Fannie Mae Vernon and Mrs. Percy
